Ideas Behind the Advance French with Four Illustrative Games

1 e4 e6
2 d4 d5
3 e5

This is the Advance French. It has been played by Steinitz, Nimzovich, Paulsen, Hort, Sveshnikov, Anand, and many others. White takes a space advantage and a longterm kingside pawn break (f2-f4-f5). Black has a solid position with no pawn weaknesses and queenside play, especially involving pressure on the d4 square. Black's pawn break is c7-c5.

White strategic plans:

1. The f5 break - pawn f2-f4-f5, make the f5 lever, open the f file for the rooks, invade and/or mate.
2. Gain space on the queenside with a2-a3 and b2-b4. This prevents black counterplay on that wing and allows white to defend d4 by .♘b2.
3. White can gain space on the kingside by playing h4-h5. Using the h pawn this way prevents black from setting up a white square blockade f7+g6+h5.

White tactics:

1. Classic bishop sacrifice
2. Center demolition sacrifice
3. f5 break
4. Mating attacks
5. e5-e6 shot

Black strategic plans:

1. Trade off the bad bishop.
2. Get developed.
 - a. Knight to f5 plan: ♞-(e7 or h6)-f5
 - b. Quick queenside: ♞d7 and ♞c8.
3. Attack d4.
4. Open lines on the queenside and invade
5. Play f7-f6
6. Kingside Blockade on White Squares, or
7. Expand on the kingside before white gets his pawns rolling.

Black tactics:

1. Overwealm the d4 pawn.
2. Center demolition sacrifice.
3. Piece sac on b4.

White's most permanent long range winning plan is to play his f pawn to f5, then either to open lines or (if black has castled kingside) to play f5-f6 with a mating attack. This Greco game shows the f-pawn attack in pure form

Illustrative Games

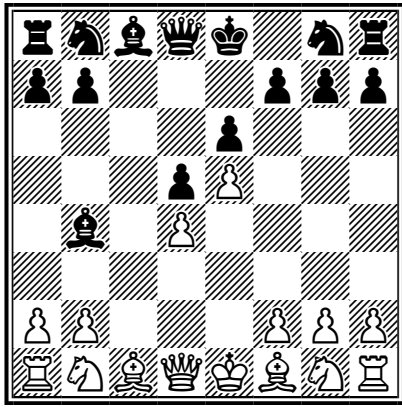

I. The f5 break strategy:

Greco - NN, 1876

1 e4 e6
2 d4 d5
3 e5 c5
4 c3 cxd4

Usually black does not make this exchange, since it allows white to develop his knight to c3.

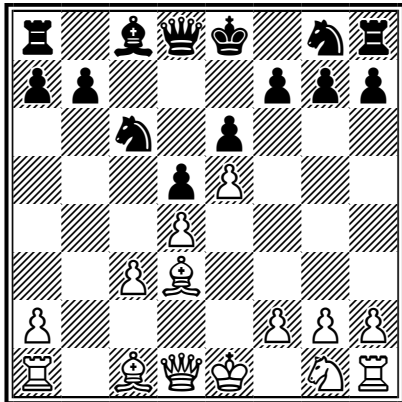

5 cxd4 ♘b4+

6 Nc3

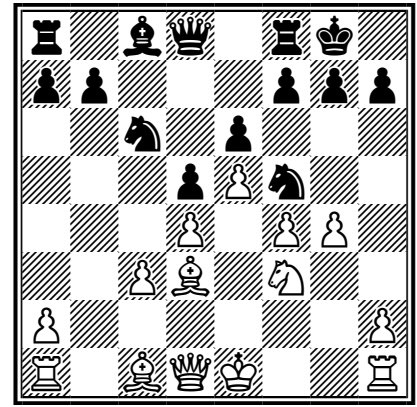

White could have played Bd2 to trade out his bad bishop, but prefers more dynamic play.

6 ... Nc3+
 7 bxc3 Nc6
 8 Bd3

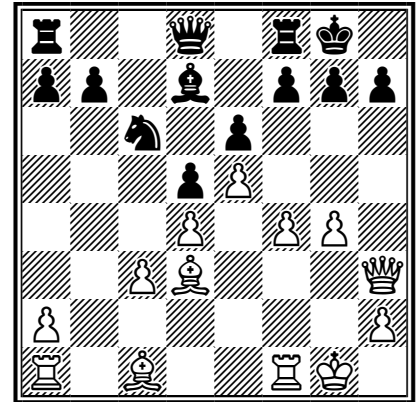

The d4 pawn is well protected. Both of white's bishops aim menacingly at the black kingside. The pawns will roll, and white will make his f5 lever. The backward c pawn is easy to protect. White is better.
